

After graduating from the prestigious Faculty of Translation and Interpreting in Geneva (formerly known as ETI) and London Metropolitan University, Luca Verthuy started working as a freelance translator and conference interpreter for both institutions and the private market, with Italian and English as his A languages, French as his B and Spanish as his C. In addition, he is a language consultant and lecturer at various Italian universities. His research interests include quality in conference and community interpreting, professional ethics, as well as cross-translation and cross-interpreting.